The Recipient will neither disclose the Confidential Information, nor use such Confidential Information for any purpose other than to analyze such Confidential Information in order to determine the potential of one or more future business transactions between the Company and the Recipient (or the Recipient's affiliates or subsidiaries). Recipient will protect the Confidential Information with at least the same degree of care that it would exercise with respect to its own Confidential Information, but in no event less than reasonable care. The Recipient may disseminate the Confidential Information only to those of its (or its affiliates' or subsidiaries') employees, directors, officers, agents, consultants, advisors, financing sources or representatives (the "Representatives") who have a need to know such information, provided that Recipient shall instruct all such Representatives as to the obligations and confidentiality under this Agreement and each such Representative shall agree to be bound to the terms of this Agreement and shall have agreed to treat such Confidential Information in accordance with the terms of this Agreement as if such Representative were a Recipient under this Agreement. For purposes of this paragraph, the term “Transaction Agreement” does not include an executed letter of intent or any other preliminary written agreement, nor does it include a written or verbal acceptance of an offer or bid on your part. Neither this paragraph nor any other provision in this Agreement can be waived or amended except by written consent of the Company, which consent shall specifically refer to this paragraph (or other such provision) and explicitly make such waiver or amendment.
